

On Thursday, April 17th, 2025 at 12:59 AM, Travis Solomon <travissolomon59@gmail.com> wrote:

Hi Dennis Watson,

I am the owner of the website or article where the original content was first posted by me on April 6, 2023. You can check on my website.

Original Article URL: -

<https://livewirecalgary.com/2023/04/06/massive-calgary-cocaine-bust-nets-90-kilos-destined-for-canadian-distribution/>

Infringe Article URL: -

<https://gangstersout.blogspot.com/2023/04/police-seize-90-kilos-of-cocaine-in.html>

- I have a good-faith belief that the disputed use is not authorized by the copyright owner, its agent, or the law;
- I, made under penalty of perjury, that the above information in your notice is accurate and that I am the copyright owner or authorized to act on the copyright owner's behalf.

Kindly remove the same from your server ASAP.

Signature
Travis Solomon

On Thursday, April 17th, 2025 at 5:21 AM, Dennis Watson <dennis_watson100@protonmail.com> wrote:

I'm willing to do this but we need to talk about this. Who are you? What are you claiming copyright to? The picture and press release came from the Calgary Police Service. Are you claiming ownership of the Calgary Police service picture and press release? Please advise.

<https://newsroom.calgary.ca/calgary-police-disrupt-national-drug-trafficking-operation/>

Dennis Watson

On Friday, April 18th, 2025 at 1:48 AM, Travis Solomon <travissolomon59@gmail.com> wrote:

Hello,

Thank you for your response and for your willingness to discuss this matter.

To clarify, I am not claiming copyright ownership over the Calgary Police Service's press release or any official media they have distributed. However, the content published on LiveWire Calgary includes original reporting, editorial work, and unique written expression that goes beyond simply republishing a press release.

The article in question was written by a journalist and contains structure, narrative, and language that are original and protected by copyright. The infringing post located at gangstersout.blogspot.com appears to substantially copy that original writing without permission, which is what prompted the copyright claim.

I fully respect the rights of the Calgary Police Service and am not challenging their content — my concern is limited strictly to the unauthorized reuse of LiveWire Calgary's journalistic work.

If you have further questions or would like to discuss this in more detail, I'm happy to continue the conversation.

Best regards,

Travis Solomon

On Friday, April 18th, 2025 at 4:19 AM, Dennis Watson <dennis_watson100@protonmail.com> wrote:

I do have further questions. Who are you? Where is your ID? Where is the proof you represent Calgary Livewire because they have not confirmed that you work for or represent them.

Dennis Watson